COURSE DESCRIPTION

In this course we will read the stories of gods and legendary heroes that were told in ancient Greece and Rome. Our central focus will be on the various literary forms of these myths, such as epic and drama, and on their functions in ancient Greek and Roman culture. We will ask questions about where the myths came from, their fundamental types, and their many religious, political, and personal uses not simply as 'ingredients' of ancient culture, but as important vehicles used by the Greeks and Romans to explain themselves to themselves. We will also consider what new use is being made of these myths through the media of television, novels, and cinema.

GRADING AND REQUIREMENTS

Quizzes	150 points (50 pts. each x 3: June 5, 12, 19)
Class Participation	50 points
Final exam	100 points (June 28)
	300 total possible points

Students should come to class having read, thought about, and taken notes on the day's assigned readings. At the end of class each Monday class session (not to include the first day of class, Monday, May 29) there will be a 30-minute quiz (50 points each) examining students on their study of the previous week's materials. Thus at the first class session of Week 2 you will be quizzed on all the materials (readings and lectures) of Week 1, then in Week 3 you will be quizzed on the materials of Week 2, and so on. A missed quiz will count as a zero.

Class participation will be taken into account (another 50 points), so missing any class during the session's 5 weeks will have an immediate negative impact on the student's grade.

The final exam, to be held during the second half of class on the last day (June 28), will be essay based and cover the material from the whole session. It is worth 100 points.
