

Yale Summer Session proudly presents

The 3rd Annual YSS Lecture Series

James E. Mahon, Professor, Philosophy,
City University of New York – Lehman College

Is Lying to Someone's Face the Worst Kind of Deception?

Lying to someone's face is usually considered to be the worst kind of deception. Recent writers on lying deny this. Some think that there is no difference between various kinds of deception. Others think that some kinds of deception are actually worse than lying. We will look at why lying is supposed to be the worst kind of deception, and consider objections to this view.

Thursday, July 27th, 5:00 p.m.

250 Loria Center, 190 York St.